My dear Dr Robinson,

With further reference to next week. I propose to reach Elizabeth on Monday afternoon on the train arriving at 4.16. Eastern Standard time. I may come by car. In that case will let you have a wire. If I do not find that possible, then shall be on the train referred to.

I got in yesterday from Lake Placid, and now am in the midst of all sorts of preparations for the coming Winter.

With love to'Queen Anne'and yourself,

Always yours,

My dear Friend,

Yesterday Miss Howell despatched to you a parcel containing the two volumes by Sir Almeric Fitzroy, which I feel certain you will enjoy reading. Perhaps it is as well to say to you that he is in politics a Conservative of Conservatives, and in blood Feudal, and one of the oldest families of England. He is however a perfectly delightful man, and I think you will feel his personality in reading his books.

The other two volumes were your own which John Harries left here, and I have thus returned.

I have a sort of half guilty feeling that I imposed on you this week; but I am afraid I cannot honestly say that I have any feeling of repentance. or even of remorse. I had too good a time! It was just delightful to have those hours with you.

By this time I expect 'Queen Anne' is back. Give her my love.

Always sincerely yours,

Edith Wharton

My dear Friend,

A letter from you dated September 21st has just come in. I am delighted to know that you are enjoying Sir Almeric. I felt sure you would. When you have done with them, I should love to have you read Spender's two volumes on "The Public Life of England."

I am glad to read your statement that my visit was "great fun". It certainly was to me. Of course absolute perfection could not be realized with the absence of "Queen Anne", but we certainly came near it.

I cannot be definite about Frank. His last letter to me seemed to indicate that he would resign and do Conference work. I think if you will, it would not be bad for you to write him and find out what his intentions are, without of course committing yourself to anything in the nature of a definite invitation at present. I append his address.

With love to all of you,

Yours in haste,

F. Crossley Morgan
